[BY JACK VEIOCK.]

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 5.—Carl Mays, sturdy underhanded twirler of the Yankees, turned the Giants back this afternoon in the first game of the world's series, winning it three to nothing.

With 30,000 fans looking on, the Yanks' ace let the anxious Giants down with five hits, while his mates took the measure of Big Phil Douglas, who pitched a nice game o ball, despite the score, but got no aggressive support fro mhis teammates who found Mays to be worse than a Chinese puzzle.

Mays was expected to prove a hard hurdle for the McGraw men and he was al lof that and more. Frankie Frisch, crack little third-sacker of the losers, was the only member of his team to solve the slants of Mays successfully, getting four hits, one of which was a triple in the sixth inning. His hit came after two were down, however and he died on third base.

[BY JACK VEIOCK]

Polo Grounds, Oct. 5.—An azure, cloud-flecked sky, a fairly warm sun and a capacity crowd of some 40,000 baseball bugs greeted the Giants and Yankees here, this afternoon, when they lined up for the first game of the all-New York world's series.

The advance guards of fans led by the usual all-woolers who camped at the ticket windows all night, filed into the park at 10o'clockwhen the gates were opened. This entree started a steady stream of humanity that wriggled its way into the huge Brush stadium until game time.

Miller Huggins' blustering Yankees were the favorites by a slight margin as the series opened. The Yankees, on account of their terrific hitting ability, have swung open to their side and there it will remain until New York gets the result of the first game.

Much depends on the outcome of the initial tilt between the rival teams. Victory for the Yankees will counterbalance the admitted superiority of the Giants in pitching, for Huggins will then have his staff in shape to start all over again.

The diamond was manicured to the queen's taste. The turf was a brilliant emerald and the brown stretches of base lines and short fields were peaceful and pastoral looking with neither more than a few cops and a herd of fans in the picture. White-coated peanut boys and hot-dog vendors draped themselves over seats in the lower stands, waiting for the oncoming mob which will consume hundreds of dollars worth of truck before the afternoon is over. The white coats had a hungry look, themselves, inherited from working while feeding others.

First Uniform.

The first sign of a uniform came in the person of Tommy McQuade, bat boy and mascot of the Giants. Tommy came out and strutted around in front of the home bench. When the bats were laid out, he rearranged them and inspected each one minutely.

The men o' McGraw were the first to arrive on the field. They entered the park from the big gate in the right field bleachers at 12:25 o'clock and their appearance was the signal for a big ovation from the crowd.

McGraw's men walked onto the field in a business-like and leisurely manner. To look at them one might think they were going to an every-day ball game.

Coay Dolan, coach of the McGraw men, started warming up in front of the press box with Frank Frisch.

Miller Huggins, "Babe" Ruth and other stars of the Yankees were singled out by the movie men for special poses. Huggins was photographed with Colonel Jake Ruppert, president of the Yankees, while the band played "Peggy O'Neill" and other popular airs.

The Yanks took their turn in the batting cage at 1:20 o'clock, with Bob Shawkey pitching to them. The Hugmen came up in turn and each one got a big round of applause.

Ruth Gets Roar.

When Ruth came up for his first turn, there was a roar. He hit the first ball pitched over the right-field grandstand and the big crowd sent up a yell that echoed and reechoed across the big stadium.

At 1:35 o'clock the Giants took the field to warm up for the game with Hugh Jennings batting to the infield and Dolan and Burkett hitting to the gardeners.

The Giants were full of snap. Peck, Frisch and Rawlings scooped hard-hit bounders out of the dirt and flashed the ball around the bases with a vim.

At this hour, the stands were pretty well filled, but there were still a great many vacant seats.

It was announced the umpires had been assigned as follows: Rigler at the plate; Moriarity at first base; Quigley at second base and Chill at third base.

While the Giants went through their fielding practice, the Yanks paired off in front of their bench and warmed up by tossing the balls back and forth. Ruth and Schang were the central figures. Ruth had on a new glove and seemed as proud of it as a kid.

At 1:45 the Yanks took the field. Shawkey batted to the infielders and the new champions showed a lot of ginger in fielding hard-hit balls.

At this hour neither McGraw nor Huggins had sent a pitcher out to warm up. They were holding back their selections to the last possible minute.

Twelve minutes before game time Governor Miller was escorted onto the field by a band. Mayor Hylan, of New York and a lot of lesser lights were with him and there was a squadron of police to make the entree more auspicious

MISS EVELYN V. DEE DIES TODAY AT NOON

Death at Thirty-Five Is Due to Apoplexy.

Miss Eveline V. Dee, who had been critically ill since Monday night, died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Dee, No. 216 east Farming street at 12 o'clock today noon.

Monday about midnight Miss Dee was found in an unconscious condition in the living room of her home, having been stricken with apoplexy. Miss Dee had formerly been a bookkeeper for the Uhler-Phillips company and about five years ago she was taken ill with nerve exhaustion while at her work at the store She never fully recovered from that illness The past week she had been feeling exceptionally well and was unusually jolly Monday evening

Miss Dee was thirty-five years of age and was born in this city. She graduated from St. Mary's High school in the class of 1906, and later entered the service of the Uhler-Phillips company She became head bookkeeper for the company and remained with it for eight years, until taken ill five years ago. During the years she was with the Uhler-Phillips company Miss Dee became very well acquainted with patrons of the store and by her pleasant manner and efficient service made many many friends. In her own circle of friends. In her own circle of lovable ways winning her much admiration.

Miss Dee was a member of St. Mary's Catholic church and the Young Ladies' Sodality of that church She is survived by her parents; four brothers and two sisters, M. J. Dee, of Portland, Oregon; William H. Dee, of Crewe, Virginia; Joseph A. Dee, of Williamson, West Virginia; Edwin C. Dee, of this city; Miss Mary Alice Dee, of Washington, and Miss Elizabeth Dee, of this city.

CITY IN BRIEF

Permit For Residence— John J. Stafford secured a building permit, Tuesday, for the construction of a residence on Hane avenue at an estimated cost of $3,500

Go to Columbus — Mrs. Esther Mack, Mr. and Mrs G. V Paschall, Miss Lorena Irvin, A. C. Edmondson, B. T. Wiant and George T Gerau today went to Columbus to attend the national convention of the American Red Cross.

Two Departments Called—Marion city fire departments Nos. 2 and 3 were called to No. 295 Blaine avenue at 12:20 this afternoon to extinguish a fire in a manure pile on the rear of the lot. Sparks from a bonfire nearby caused the fire.

Sentenced to Workhouse—Charles L. Dain this morning was sentenced to four months in the Dayton workhouse and fined $25 on a non-support charge brought against him by the humane society. He was tried in Justice G. Farr Laric's court.

Relief Corps Inspection—Mrs. Desse M. Cole, of Kenton, assistant inspector for the Woman's Relief corps, inspected the local corps Tuesday evening at a meeting held in the Junior Order hall After the inspection a social hour was enjoyed.

Now It's the Milk Thief— A new brand of thief has started operating in Marion, according to reports from the West Side. For some time people in different sections of the city have been missing change left in milk bottles on their porches, but until recently this has been the only thing disturbed. Reports from the vicinity of Oliney avenue now state that bottles of milk have been disappearing from porches.

Directory Canvass Almost Finished—C. E. Durfee, in charge of the canvass for the new city directory, says the work here is nearly completed. The canvass in the residence sections will be through by Saturday and when a few odds and ends calls are done they will leave town. He says in cases where people were not home post cards have been or will be left and asks the householder to fill the card out and mail promptly, thereby assuring a complete directory.

Auto Owner Found—An Overland roadster with Ohio license No 572,122, standing part way on a lawn on north Oak street since early Tuesday morning, was taken to police headquarters this morning. It was thought that the machine might have been stolen and deserted, as it was out of gasolene and had two flat tires. An investigation disclosed that the machine was the property of Edward Merriman, of north State street, this city.

He's in Bad Fix—John Hamner was arraigned before the mayor this morning to answer an affidavit filed against him by Charles Walker charging him with stealing a bicycle valued at $15 Hamner entered a plea of not guilty to the charge, claiming he purchased the bicycle at Caledonia for four dollars, but he was unable to give the name of the man who sold him the wheel His hearing was set for Friday afternoon.

Eleven Affidavits—Charles Ramsey, an officer of the Erie, filed eleven affidavits in the mayor's court, Tuesday, charging as many local boys ranging in age from fifteen to nineteen years, with breaking glasses and destroying other property at Caledonia, the amount of damage done being estimated at $15. Several days ago the boys were stealing a freight train ride and were put off at Caledonia. They put in the time breaking windows and destroying other property. The local police were rounding up the boys, today.

Radio Club Uses Amplifier—The Triangle Radio club held its regular meeting at the Y. M. C. A building Tuesday evening. After code practice by the members, the president, Carroll Kerr, gave a talk on the principles of the radio variometer. Atmospheric conditions were good and many radio stations were heard. By the use of the amplifier the signals were heard all over the room, and even on the floor below, without the use of head receivers. The state boys' work secretary G W. Carlich, was a visitor at the meeting, and told of various other Y M C. A. radio stations in Ohio.

Merit Scout Badges — The examining committee for awarding merit badges to Boy Scouts of first class rank met last night and organized. The committee consisted of H. R. McVay, J. F. Dombaugh, Tom S. Cathers, Dr. J. W. McMurray, H. E. Hill. H. R. McVay was selected as chairman and J F. Dombaugh, secretary. The committee will hold its first merit badge examination at the Y. M. C. A. building, Tuesday, November 1, at 7 p. m. Five scouts, through their masters, have filed applications.

Meeting Is Postponed.

The regular meeting of the Missionary society, of the Calvary Evangelical church, to have been held Thursday has been postponed until October 13, when the general president of the Woman's Missionary society, Mrs. E. M. Spring, of Cleveland, will be here. The missionary societies of the other Evangelical churches in the city and of the Salem church east of Marion, have been invited to this meeting, which will be held in the church.

Health is a Woman's Greatest Asset

Contrast the cheerful happy woman with head erect, the glow of health on her cheeks, the elastic step and bubbling enthusiasm as she goes about her daily tasks, with the woman who suffers from backache, headaches, dragging-down pains, nervousness and despondency. Such conditions are undoubtedly caused by woman's ailments which will yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for many, many years has been restoring weak ailing women to health and strength Every woman who suffers in this way owes it to herself to at least give it a trial.—Adv.

Poultry Improvement work, pooling of orders for farm machinery and farm accounting were topics for discussion at the regular meeting of the Tully Township Farm bureau Tuesday evening in the centralized school at Martel.

A license to marry was issued Tuesday afternoon to Raymond W. Workman, banker, Leipsic, and Miss Mary Florence Burke, clerk, Marion.

REV. MR. HAWES ACCEPTS PASTORATE IN ARIZONA

After Preaching Twice in Baptist Church at Mesa.

A special despatch from Mesa, Arizona, to the Arizona Republican at Phoenix, Arizona, says.

Rev. F. E. Hawes, of Marion, Ohio, was given a unanimous call to the pastorate of the Baptist church of Mesa at a meeting of the membership held Sunday following the morning service Rev. Hawes has been in the valley for several weeks visiting with friends in Phoenix and has occupied the local pulpit for the last two Sundays.

Following the pastor's initial appearance here a week ago members of the church were generally agreed to call him and it was practically a foregone conclusion that he would be called even before the official meeting was held Sunday. Members were unanimous in their selection of the new pastor and are confident that they have a man who will mean much to the church and its growth in the future.

Rev. Hawes has been pastor for the last three years of the Fite Memorial Baptist church in Marion and resigned there and has refused other offers in favor of the local pastorate. Mrs. Hawes has been with him since his stay in the valley and they will move to Mesa shortly to take up their permanent residence. The pastor enters upon his duties at once and will be with the members at the prayer meeting service Wednesday evening.

BIG CROWD WATCHES STAR BALL PLAYER

Which Depicts World Series Game, Play by Play.

Center street along the north side from the old Baptist church east to High street was packed this afternoon with anxious fans watching the progress of the first world series contest between the Yankees and Giants at the Polo grounds, as shown on the Star's new score board, the "Star Ball Player."

This is the first time in the history of Marion that a board has been in operation showing the progress of the game play by play. The board shows each batter as he comes to the plate, shows the ball leaving the pitcher's hands and just where it goes, whether it is a ball, strike or hit and in case of a hit the ball is shown leaving the bat to the proper location on the diamond.

Interest of the crowd was kept up by the quickness with which the plays were shown on the board after being received over the Star's leased wire direct from the Polo grounds and as the game progressed the crowd increased in size. Only one thing was lacking and that was the small boy on the telephone pole, but some were seen on the balcony on the building directly across from the Star.

Brigadier General C. E. Sawyer was in Marion yesterday, following his attendance at the meeting in Columbus of the Ohio state medical board, of which he is president. He left this morning for Columbus to attend the Red Cross meeting being held there and will return here tonight.

Approximately 150 attended the regular meeing of the Prospect Township Farm bureau Tuesday night in the Knights of Pythias hall. A program of music and recitations was given, timely farm bureau problems were discussed and lunch was served.

Six or more pupils of the Marion county schools are to go to Columbus Monday and Tuesday for sight reading and music dictation demonstration at the Ohio Schoolmen's conference.

C. H. Lennon, of east Center street, who has been seriously ill at his home for the last three weeks from a complication of diseases, is convalescing slowly.

There is a Vernon Heights message on page 13—perhaps it's for you.—Adv. 264-2t.

J. J. McClory, Chestnut street, has installed a Holland furnace.—Adv.-1-c.

MARK'S COLLAPSE SEEN BY BAKSON

"A friend of mine has recently been in Germany. While there he won some money in a poker game. When he went to cash in his chips he was told to wait a minute. He waited two hours and got his roll of mark notes and all of them were wet from the printing press. That is the way German marks are being turned out today. Germany is full of marks; but they are only made of paper. So long as the Germans can sell Americans paper at such a fancy price a pound, they will continue to print marks.

"The value of paper money depends on two things; the gold reserve to redeem it, and the credit of the government behind it. There are millions of marks afloat in Germany which can never be redeemed in coin. In fact, it is a joke to think of that as a possibility. As for credit, the German government is not on its feet yet and no one has very much confidence in it.

"The international bankers are extending credit to German business firms, in spite of the German government, because they have confidence in the industriousness of the German people. These qualities are entirely independent of the number of marks turned out in Berlin. German business men and German workmen can and will produce, English and American bankers know it, and for that reason they will continue to arrange credits for German firms in spite of the fact that the mark is still falling.

"Now that the mark has 'hit bottom and gone through' the Germans are rushing the stock market and buying stock like crazy men. That country is in a fever of speculation. We saw that kind of fever here two years ago. Stocks hit the top of the thermometer, but they came down again and a lot of people got hurt.

"At the present time in Germany nobody trusts the mark. Accordingly every one wants to turn marks into securities. Farm hands and servant girls are buying stocks. People will take anything if only they can get securities in exchange for marks. Sooner or later the tide of speculation will turn. Stock prices will tumble and a number of Germans will be wondering whether they are better off with the worthless stock certificates than they were with their paper marks.

"Germany's position today is perfect testimony to the fact that all financial dealings are finally determined by the fundamental laws of right and wrong. German business is getting credit from bankers in former enemy nations because the German people are industrious and dependable. The German mark has dropped out of sight because the government put out a lot of worthless paper money which people are now unloading wholesale in exchange for stock. This is why the mark which was worth almost an American quarter seven years ago is now worth less than a cent.

"Both the German government and the speculators have been busily engaged in an effort to get something for nothing. That attempt, however, has never succeeded and never will. Something for nothing does not exist. What we get we pay for some way or another. The common people in Germany know it, and the New York banks realize that they know it. This is Germany's salvation. When the leaders of Germany also learn this, they will reorganize. In the meantime look for financial fireworks. With the German government following its present practice the future of the mark depends upon the market price for waste paper.

"There is a little change in the situation in the United States. Business is now 72.5 points below normal compared with 82.5 points below a month ago, and the low of 110 points below which occurred during March 11, however, we will learn a lesson from Germany and quit trying to get something for nothing business revival will be greatly accelerated.

For the sake of your babies see our baby today

FOR years this has been our hope—to develop a small hot-water radiator-boiler that would warm a modest home as perfectly as our larger heating plants have warmed mansions, cathedrals, and even the White House itself.

ARCOLA is the practical fulfilment of that hope. ARCOLA is the baby of the American Radiator Company.

It is unlike any heating plant you have ever seen. It is boiler, radiator and water-heater combined—as handsome as a fine phonograph and costing hardly any more.

ARCOLA creates and radiates warmth in the room where it is placed, and connected with American Radiators, it will heat every other room and provide hot water for bathing and washing as well.

Comfort, security and health are ARCOLA'S gift; and it pays for itself in an amazingly short time. The price is so low it will surprise you—50% higher last year than now.

For the sake of your whole family—your babies especially—go to your Heating Contractor and see our baby today.

The red and yellow card at the right is the sign of a Heating or Sanitary Engineer (formerly called Steamfitter or Plumber) who can show you ARCOLA. Look for it in his window.

It will pay you to consult him twice a year as you do your Doctor or Dentist. To have him examine and report on your heating and plumbing costs little. It may save you a very great deal.

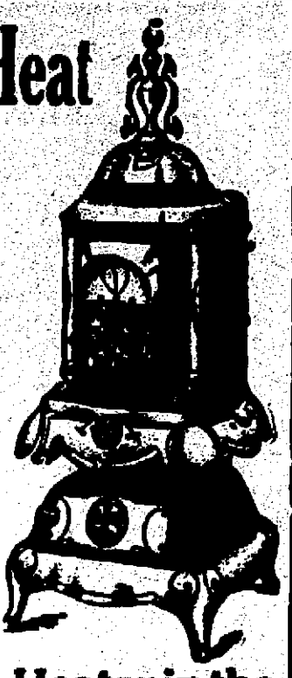
Keeping the Heat At Home



Here's a Clermont Hot Blast. It is the one Hot Blast that isn't continually whacking the coal pile—pounding it into nothingness with body blows and uppercuts—sending most of the heat to the big outside world, while you hustle to keep warm in the house.

ou could see the big hollow flues, opening from the floor to surrounded on all sides by the very fire that all other Hot end out through the chimney—if you could see, could feel ensely heated this cold floor air becomes as it rushes out op and circulates to every nook and corner of every room, e amazed—and your amazement would increase were you your hand on the stove pipe where it enters the flue, when rn how little heat is passing into the big outside world.

ere Isn't Another Hot Blast Heater in the World Like The "KING CLERMONT"

alf the fire—because you get practically all the heat from all the fuel you consume—e you as much heat as any other Hot Blast can possibly produce, and when you open afts—get the stove really going—you can bring the house to a boiling point in a jiffy.

Daily Proverb—"The heart's testimony is stronger than a thousand witnesses."

Representative Herrick appears to have crowded into the hall of newspaper fame.

There may be disagreement today as to the outcome of the series, but two weeks hence it will be the rare exception who didn't know from the first what the result was going to be.

Strange to relate, none of the recent movie pictures from Paris show any of the long shirts the smart dressers over there were going to wear.

You never can tell. The timely hitting in the present series may be done by what ordinarily are the lightest batters on the teams.

There's an old one to the effect that you have to go away from home to get the news, and in this connection we note that the California papers usually have to go over into Utah to get their earthquakes.

As we have frequently remarked, there is always the streak of silver in the cloud. These days we are seeing fewer of the barber pole silk shirts.

If some of the big city newspaper writers continue in their present trend, they are liable to have he United States and Japan at war before either country knows anything about it.

Prominence in any field is not without its disadvantage. When an ordinary player strikes out with the bases full it isn't given any consideration, but should Babe Ruth do so he would get into the top dack of the display head.

What will be so hard for a lot of readers to understand is how the enterprising correspondents neglected to transform that little hail flurry of Monday into the season's first snow.

Dr. Rathenau tells us that the harder Germany works to pay off the indemnity the less work will be left for the rest of the world to do. In a word, she will sell so cheaply that the rest of the world can not sell at all. But if the rest of the world can not make with which to buy, to whom will Germany sell?

"And what is so beautiful," asks a Buckeye paragrapher, "as an October morning just before sunrise, with the crescent moon and the planet Venus adorning the eastern sky?" It's not a fair question. Any self-respecting paragrapher hasn't any business getting home at any such hour.

NOT A GOOD ARGUMENT.

Walter Rathenau, the German minister of reconstruction, points out that a readjustment of reparations obligations is necessary to save, not Germany, but the allies and their associates. He declares that Germany must continue her efforts to comply with the burden placed on her, but he warns the world that others will suffer more. The more Germany works, he says, the more must others remain idle. He cites the value of the mark as proof that Germany can not pay in coin and he weeps to contemplate what will happen to France, Great Britain and America if Germany pays in goods.

While the disappearing value of the mark is perplexing financiers, may it not be just the course sought by the Germans? It provides such a good excuse for their pleas for revision of the reparations terms. The rate at which marks are being printed naturally would make them worthless in comparison with gold, but for that to constitute a valid reason for sidestepping payment for the damages they inflicted is to beg the question. We doubt not that France would willingly undergo the suffering that a few billion gold marks handed over by Germany would inflict.

German workshops are rushed with orders and large profits are reported. It may be that these profits are measured in paper money, but they are profits. They demonstrate that Germany is prosperous in a way. A nation that is working and making a profit has no cause to complain of poverty. Probably if Germany is pointedly advised that the declining mark is not an excuse for dodging her obligation, her fist evidence of failure will begin to appreciate.

Back of the expressions of hope that the limitation of armaments conference will prove an unbounded success in the matter of accomplishments of benefits to the world, which expressions are voiced by spokesmen of all countries that will participate, there is a note of reservation attributed by some keen observers to fear. This fear, they explain, is of "American inexperience, American lack of understanding and American childlike inconsistency in foreign affairs."

This can mean only that they doubt the United States will play the diplomatic game according to the rules prevailing in the Old world. They say we have a lot to learn. Possibly we have. But are they the safest preceptors? Is there nothing they can learn? If Old world diplomats are coming to Washington to carry on as of yore it were better perhaps that they stay at home. Yet in our childlike innocence we have faith that the impressions we have received are not altogether accurate with regard to their intentions.

President Harding did not summon the conference with purpose to confirm the old rules and perpetuate the old set-up. The others know that and the fact that they have agreed to confer gives ground for confidence that they will at least carefully examine what America has to propose and not make their decisions until they have heard the evidence and the arguments. If they have not forgotten the World war they should be inclined to consider means of avoiding its like in the future.

The Greeks started out to get turkey, but they may be willing to compromise on cranberry sauce.

THE LESSON OF RUSSIA.

Quite the most astonishing news out of Russia is that which tells of the readiness of the soviet government to invite private capital back into business. It is new evidence of the tottering state of the Bolshevists and portends an almost complete renunciation of the deformed type of government which they have been trying to maintain.

While the soviet means to exercise control over railways, metallurgical, textile and fuel resources, all other business activity is thrown open to private capital for development. Soviet leaders admit that they attempted more than they can accomplish and assert that communism is a matter of slow growth.

This development is another invaluable contribution the Russian revolution has made to mankind. It is another instance of where failure has become a blessing in disguise. Without the Russian experiment, there would still be a steadfast group of persons in the world urging that communism should replace all other forms of existence. The Russians have robbed them of their last anchor.

It does not follow that Russia will swing to the right as far as it did to the left. That would be as great a calamity as the other has proved to be. The net result will be probably a nice balance between the extreme radicalism and the extreme conservatism. Russia may point the way for some reform in government, but if she does not, the world owes her acknowledgment for demonstrating the stupendous folly of communism.

SCARS OF BATTLE DISAPPEARING.

Former service men and officers who have been to the battlefields of France say they are scarcely able to recognize regions that less than three years ago they knew well. The scars of battle are fast disappearing. Much of this is due to the restoration work done by man, but nature has not been less busy. Where fields of grain have not been sown or gardens planted the daisies have carpeted the walls of the crumbling trenches. The rains of summer and the storms of winter have been at work obliterating the shell holes and the gun pits. Grass grows where armed men trampled in the deep mud.

Were the devastated land untouched wind and rain and frost and sun would in a few years restore the ground to much the same appearance it had before the Germans started on their invasion. When man assists nature the restoration is quickened.

LIFE'S VAUDEVILLE.

[By Dr. James Ball Naylor.]

"HOWLERS."

The test questions issued by the Review of Reviews, questions anent prominent persons and current events, were submitted to over 200,000 students in all parts of the country; and the answers to these questions are disappointing, indeed, showing a woeful lack of information on the part of our young people.

The prime purpose of our schools and colleges is to fit our young folks for the duties and responsibilities of citizenship. But are these seats of learning so doing?

The questions sent out by the Review of Reviews were not "catchers." They did not demand technical knowledge, nor freak memories. They were plain and easy questions; questions any reading adult or youngster should be able to answer correctly. But the answers tabulated give the following astounding revelation of a state of ignorance almost unbelievable.

The Institute for Public Service were handed 17,500 of the answers, selected at random, of course. Its report gives the averages earned by the different classes and grades of students and pupils, as follows:

College seniors and juniors answered about sixty per cent. of the questions correctly; college freshmen but fifty-three per cent.; high school seniors but fifty-one per cent.; high school third year but fifty per cent.; high school second year but forty-two per cent.; high school first year but thirty-five per cent.; grammar school seniors but forty-two per cent.; and so on. Of the 17,500, only 332 got over ninety per cent.; 1,385 got over eighty per cent., and 2,703—or one in seven—got over seventy per cent.

Here are a few of the many "howlers" that were returned:

Who is Samuel Gompers?

"Head of shipbuilders," "a poet," "labor's representative in congress," "secretary of labor," "head of the strikers," minister to France, England and Japan."

Who is Lloyd George?

"King of England," "King of Ireland," "ambassador to the United States."

Who is Senator Henry Cabot Lodge?

"Believer in conversations with the dead," "ambassador to England," "president of the senate," "English speechmaker," "secretary of war," "writer on psychic research."

What is the budget?

"A bill of particulars," "a booklet for keeping expenses," "news or announcements."

Who are the Sinn Fein?

"A lawless mob in Russia," "the Socialists in Ireland," "a gang of mysterious men."

Who is Charles Evans Hughes?

"President Wilson's private secretary," "wants to conquer Russia."

Who is Charles G. Dawes?

"Secretary of the navy."

But these are enough!

Laugh as we read these "howlers?" Of course we do.

But we dubiously shake our heads, even while we laugh.

FROM OUR READERS

Wit and Humor.

Editor Star—Those who could not be in the Presbyterian church last evening certainly deserved the sympathy of those who were there to hear the wit and humor of the after-dinner talks—to hear Miss Smith's auditorium address, a graphic and instructive account of state guild work—to hear once more Mrs. Harder's voice from the choir loft in touching pathos of recital and solo—to hear Miss Schultz's inspiring appeal for Korea and China, and finally, to see a well-prepared pageant put on by the Westminster guild, best appreciated by those who have enjoyed a season's guild reading circle in their own homes.

Miss Schultz was on the Pacific coast in the summer of 1919. A daily vacation Bible school was conducted by the state Sunday-school secretary, with state and city assistants, in a needy section of Portland, Oregon, and a young people's conference at Forest Grove institute, a suburban co-ed school. Anyone attending these, as well as last night's gathering, carried enthusiasm away.

Aside from curiosity, the motives for being at last night's meeting were similar to those that filled the spacious building to capacity, when Chapman and Alexander were here.

The extension of protective laws for women workers in Austria fix the new conditions of service in conformity with the Washington convention. Before and after motherhood a period of rest must be granted without loss of employment, and further concessions are made with regard to time allowed to mothers for nursing their infants.

Miss Jane Henderick, assistant freight traffic manager of the French line of New York, is believed to be the only woman traffic manager of a transoceanic steamship company. Miss Henderick supervises and directs the movement of freight of all of the French line vessels plying between France, Spain, Germany and the Baltic ports and New York and the gulf.

MRS. DANIEL KNOTE, HIT BY AUTO, DIES

Funeral Will Be Held at Galion Thursday at 2 P. M.

Galion, O., Oct. 6.—Mrs. Mary Knote, 329 north Columbus street, was struck by an automobile at 8:15, Monday night, and suffered injuries which caused her death soon after.

Mrs. Knote had been employed at various chores during the evening and shortly after 8 o'clock she started up street, presumably to make some purchases. She walked on the east side of north Columbus street. Mrs. Knote's hearing has Schuppel residence, about halfway between east Church and the first alley south, when for some unknown reason she started across to the west side of the street.

George McClure, 657 Cherry street, was driving his Ford coupe southward on the west side of the steret. Mrs. Knote's hearing has been somewhat impaired and she failed to hear the approaching machine, no doubt, and with her eyes directed southward failed to see it approach, it is presumed. She was attired in dark and McClure says he failed to see her until his machine was upon her. Then he quickly swerved the coupe toward the sidewalk to avoid the lady, but she evidently became dazed as she noted the approaching machine and ran directly in its path, it is stated. She was knocked down and thrown under the machine.

A physician hastily summoned ordered the unconscious woman taken to the Good Samaritan hospital, and she was conveyed to that institution by the Whittridge ambulance. She was placed in the emergency ward where she died about twenty minutes later. Mrs. Knote sustained a deep cut in the back of the head, her jawbone was fractured and there were other injuries which contributed to her death. The body was taken to the Whittridge morgue and there prepared for burial.

Young McClure who drove the machine said he had it under control and that it was running slowly and in verification of this statement points out that he brought the machine to an immediate stop after the woman was thrown under it.

The deceased was a native of Germany, born June 3, 1852, the daughter of John and Catherine Miller. The parents migrated to America when she was three years of age, settling in New Philadelphia, this state. Her marriage was to Daniel Knote, who preceded her in death. Twenty-seven years ago she came to Galion, where she continued an esteemed resident to her death, reaching the age of 69 years and five months. She is survived by a daughter, Caroline, at home, a daughter, Mrs. Catherine Ansart, of Seattle, Washington, a son, Henry Knote, of this city, and a brother, Samuel Miller, who lives in New Philadelphia. For many years she had been a member of Bell of Liberty Council, Daughters of America, of this city.

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of Henry Knote, 441 north Columbus street, with burial in Fairview. Rev. H. E. Bright will conduct the services.

VEIOCK ON SPORTS

New York, Oct 5 —Gotham bubbled over with baseball enthusiasm today as the Giants and Yanks entered the first game of the world's series

Thousands of fans, armed with precious reserved-seat tickets and other thousands who had to be content to take a chance n "crashing" the gate, started their march on the Polo grounds at sunup

Invigorating autumn weather, flavored with a crisp October tang and tempered with friendly sunshine completed the stage setting for what promises to be the greatest series ever played

Though the opening game was not scheduled to start until 2 o'clock, Eastern Standard time the intense interest in the battle between the rival New York pennant winners and the limited accommodations at the Polo grounds caused New Yorkers to fall over each other in the rush for tickets

The great stadium will comfortably seat 38,000 fans About 20,000 of these seats are reserved, the rest being sold at the ticket windows the day of each game

Conservative estimates place the number of people in the metropolitan district interested in the big series at something over 4,000,000 Forty thousand at most can see each game If the series should go the full nine games, total attendance will run around 360,000. So it is to see what a mass of fans will be disappointed

Ruth is the big ace of the Yanks He is the "keg" of nit that the Yankee fans are counting on to shatter the defenses of the Giants He has hammered baseballs into the stands and over the walls at the Polo grounds so consistently against the best pitchers in the American league that his admirers can see no way for the Giant twirlers to stop him The more rabid the Yankee fan, the more willing he is to wager that Ruth will monopolize the series.

Thanks to Ruth and his popularity the Yanks went into the series today carrying a burden of slight favoritism on their shoulders Betting however, was at even money for the most part, except for sporadic wagers and freak bets among radical partisans of the rival teams

GASLESS DAYS ARE OVER, OFFICIALS ANNOUNCE

Big Main Is Repaired Before the Scheduled Time.

REPAIR WORK GOING ON SINCE SEPTEMBER 15

Three Forces Worked on the Main—Pipe in Pretty Bad Condition.

Repairing of the gas main between Marion and Mt. Gilead, which has been in progress since September 15, was completed Tuesday afternoon and the gas turned on before schedule time about the middle of the afternoon. It had been announced it would be turned on at 5 p m.

Officials of the gas company announced that this completes this year's program of the company for repairing and there will be no more interruptions in service.

Marion's gas supply comes through an eight-inch main from Mt. Gilead, leading off from a sixteen-inch line From Mt Gilead to Denmark the line passes through farm land and from Denmark west to Marion it follows the road

Three forces of men worked on the main All of the pipe was taken up, new joints were made and all holes in the line repaired by welding The workers reported that they found about forty out of every 100 joints in bad condition From Denmark to Marion the line was moved from the road and placed at the side of the fence so that necessary repairs may be made in the future without interfering with improved roads when they are built

MT. GILEAD AGAIN TURNS DOWN BONDS

Defeat Offering for Fourth Time. Schools To Close.

For the fourth time Mt Gilead voters turned down the proposition to issue bonds for the purpose of erecting a new school building, at the special election last Saturday, defeating the proposition by a majority of eighteen

The election was preceded by strenuous doings The newspapers had been filled with arguments for and against the bond issue, and eleventh hour circulars were distributed in connection with the election. Leaders of the opposition went so far as to make an application for an injunction against the election, but met with a refusal.

The election was naturally a hotly contested one and considerable bad feeling was engendered While the opponents to the bond issue are jubilant, the proponents are threatening all sorts of things and as a matter of fact the end is not yet

While the schools are re-opened as a temporary arrangement and because of an impression that the bond issue, which had been cut down to $100,000 would carry, it is announced now that there will be no school after thirty days and until a different arrangement is made

PILOTS HIS MEN INTO SIXTH SERIES

New York, Oct. 5—John J. McGraw, veteran leader of the Giants, today piloted his men into the sixth world's series since he took charge of the team. He has copped but one championship flag — that of 1905.

It was the first world's series for Miller Huggins and his Yanks. The Yanks formed as a ball club in 1903, won their first American-league championship this year.

McGraw has won seven National-league pennants, but one year there was no world's series.

Dorothy Bush was elected president of the Home Guards of the Epworth M E. church at its first meeting for the season held at the church Saturday afternoon The other officers elected were Eula Bain, vice president, Starling Cramer, secretary, and May Lowe, treasurer.

Love Messages Via Telephone in City

"Hello? Oh, I say, hello-oh, is this you, Irene?" and a radiantly hopeful smile illuminates the bold features of a huge blond who lounges 200 pounds strong on the glass display case showing "best quality in rubber" goods at the drug or cigar store, whichever place it happens to be.

"What! It is?" he sighs further, apparently very much surprised.

The smile then settles itself placidly among the grooves of his homely face and he drapes his great form a little more heavily over the perilously thin glass counter and begins the regular afternoon repartee to which others must be an unwilling audience of half its conversation.

Immediately in front of the telephoner's eyes hangs a courteously worded sign, reading, "Please Use This Telephone for Business Only and Limit Your Conversation to Three Minutes."

Love's Picture.

Does he see it? All he sees is in his mind's eye picture of the girl at the other end of the wire. He imagines her in a rose silk negligee with her golden hair tumbling in curls over her shoulders of in a demure little gingham house dress such as she will prepare when she prepares meals in the kitchen of her dream flat.

In reality the dream girl is probably done up in electric hair curlers, through the use of which she has so far succeeded in making him believe her hair is naturally curly. Her house dress may be anything from the accumulation of the good parts of a half dozen outfits to a faded blue dressing gown. Her feet may be thrust into a pair of worn satin pumps, wobbly heeled. At least in the majority of cases the appearance of the girl who figures in telephone love scenes is in such utter contrast to her honeyed voice that the unsuspecting swain would crash through the dangerously positioned glass show case if the telephone would suddenly become an object through which one might see as well as hear.

Boy, Page Edison!

But it won't—that is unless Thomas A. Edison can find time during the remaining busy years of his life to study out how it could be done. That is just one of the many advantages of the telephonic service.

And there is nothing, absolutely nothing, which is going to change the bland, empty, foolishly sweet expression on the young Romeo's face—not even the frowns of disgusted clerks or the impatient remarks of other "telephone customers."

Movie or Fireside.

So he continues to call her endearing names, ask her whether she still loves him as much as she did yesterday, and inquire again and again whether she wants to go to the movies or would she rather spend a quiet evening at home.

Then he shifts elbows and through his right ear listens to more love coos while everybody is compelled to hear their love frought answers, far too distinct, in spite of the muffling forearm.

By this time there is a whole table of impatient foot tappers and frowners awaiting their turn at the community telephone.

"The idiot," complains a sour-faced spinster. "I was to telephone my sister the minute I reached this store so that she could catch the next car."

"Minutes are worth hours to me," wails a second waster of precious moments.

"The bank will be closed before I get this message in," growls one man.

"If I could only get to the phone long enough to learn the name of that medicine," is the worry of another.

And while all stubbornly refuse to seek another telephone instrument and restlessly stamp their feet and pace hurriedly back and forth, the cool offender rambles on and on.

Ends With a Kiss.

"Yes, dear, I'm all alone," he whispers, "and I'm so lonesome. If you were only here. How can I wait until the day"—etc., etc., and then—smack!—a pause, and everybody knows that the person at the other end of the wire has responded in the usual way. The telephone conversation has at last come to a close!

"Whew!" the anxious all sigh in unison. And all hesitate, each one trying to decide, after the long period of waiting, who in the group is next at the telephone.

And the worst of it is that the unconscious and sublime expression on the poor clown's face as he wends his way from their midst is proof that his mind is so far away he was and is yet unaware of their furious and expostulating presence!

ANNOUNCEMENT

In appreciation of the prominence that has come to Marion, and as a lasting expression of our loving esteem, we the citizens of Marion, through the leadership of our Chamber of Commerce and interested citizens, have formulated plans for the building of a magnificent and commodious hotel in honor of our greatest citizen, friend and neighbor—

President Warren G. Harding

Marion is fast becoming a metropolitan center. We are no longer a country village. We are a city and known to the entire world as "the President's home." We should have suitable hotel quarters for a presidential party, and a hotel home to which our President could bring his guests with a feeling of pride. We owe this honor to President Harding and the city of Marion needs this hotel.

HOTEL HARDING

This hotel and its beautiful furnishings will cost approximately $600,000 and will be eight stories high, reenforced concrete construction, fire-proof, 160 rooms with baths. More complete details will follow this announcement, and illustration of hotel, with its floor plans will be published.

HOTEL MANAGEMENT

We are more than pleased to announce that Mr. Charles T. Gauvey selected as the Hotel Company's Manager, is a man broadly known to the traveling public, and a man of superior executive ability with a host of loyal friends. Mr. Gauvey, whose photograph appears above, is now the manager of the new "Shawnee" Hotel, of Springfield, Ohio. Not only has he an enviable reputation and large acquaintance, but we may mention incidently that he has also, shown a large profit earning for his stockholders. Formerly he was identified with Algonquin and Beckel Hotels, Dayton, Ohio, "Sloan" of Sandusky, the "Breakers at Cedar Point, and the Columbia and Euclid hotels of Cleveland.

BUILDING PLANS

There will be no delay in the building of this hotel. The location selected is the corner lot, 80 x 200 feet, at Center and Orchard Streets. Mr. William Earl Russ, architect, has now completed the plans of the "Hotel Harding" and working in consultation with the manager, Mr. Charles T. Gauvey, so as to carry out all details desired by the new management. Mr. Russ assisted in designing the "Shawnee" hotel now managed by Mr. Gauvey, also the "Simon" hotel, of Cincinnati the "McCurdy" hotel, of Evansville, Ind., the "Seelback, of Louisville, Ky., and other well-known hotels. Mr. Russ was also consulting architect in the building of the "McAlpin" hotel of New York City.

CITIZENS! This Project Needs Your Help

This $600,000 hotel for the city of Marion is assured if the people of Marion will pledge $175,000 toward the investment. The Chamber of Commerce pledges $125,000 making a total of $300,000 the entire capital stock of The New Hotel Company, and banking interests provide the additional $300,000.

Marion through its Chamber of Commerce announce that the members will give one or two special weeks to the "Hotel Harding Project" and several weeks, if necessary, as Marion must have this hotel and can raise $175,000 easily in a short time by each person contributing their share. The plan is made easy. You can pledge the amount and make monthly or time payments, pay cash, or give a satisfactory bankable note.

Now Citizens, we appeal to your Civic Pride and love for your President. The City of Canton, Ohio, built the "McKinley" hotel to their President. Are we not able on these most favorable terms to build the "Hotel Harding" and commemorate the name of our President and fellow citizen.

Let everyone come forward voluntarily and do his or her share in this project. AN INTERESTING BOOKLET describing and illustrating the hotel and giving the financial plan will be found at all the banks in Marion, and are for free distribution. Don't fail to get a booklet at your bank.

EVERY BANK IN MARION WILL ACCEPT YOUR FUNDS

Every Bank in Marion has been made a depository for these funds. You can make your pledge at your own bank, which the Chamber of Commerce wants each citizen to do, without being urged or called upon. If notified, our representative will be pleased to call upon you.

A campaign or drive will soon be made by teams and committees, and "Hotel Harding" buttons will be given on making pledge, indicating that you are to be a "Stockholder" of the New Hotel Company, and have subscribed.

Holding A Husband

BY ADELE GARRISON.

I had no time to answer Mrs. Durkee's comment that I was "making the mistake of my life in having that girl back again," for we reached our house as she finished speaking, and the occupants of the big car just alighted, swept us into their delightful encomiums of the grounds, the house, its decorations—everything concerning our new purchase.

But her words lingered with me for days, though curiously enough, the warning against Grace Draper did not affect me nearly as much as did the seemingly inadvertent statement, "Edith is behaving badly enough, goodness knows." That fitted in so closely with the suspicion which had swayed me during Dicky's absence, that I could think of nothing else.

Her meaning was made clear enough to me, however, before many days passed, and it dwarfed in my mind even the bizarre situation of having Grace Draper practically an inmate of our home. We had moved into the remodelled Dacey farmhouse upon the day following the arrival of the Durkees; and Dicky and I had insisted upon Robert Savarin's coming with us. This left Mrs. Tiger's rooms vacant, and while I, myself, had thought of the feasibility of having Grace Draper stay there, it gave me a distinct shock to have Dicky broach the subject to me.

"I say, old top," he said breezily to me upon the third day following the arrival of the Durkee party at Shelter Island, "what do you think of having Gracie board at Mrs. Tiger's while she's posing for me? You see, my arrangement with her naturally calls for her expenses while she's down here, but I don't exactly see the necessity of maintaining her at a summer hotel. Then, too, getting her over here each day is a nuisance. So how about Tiger's?"

"I think it a most admirable arrangement," I replied sedately, with no hint of the turmoil within me.

I welcomed her, wondering the while at something inscrutable in her eyes besides the very real suffering which was mirrored there. I wondered if she surmised, as I did, that the real reason for his wishing her transfer to the Tiger farmhouse was his disinclination to have Grace Draper know how much time he was spending with Edith Fairfax.

For under the pretense of "seeing old Alf," Dicky made almost daily trips to Shelter Island, at first in my unpretentious car, but within a week he had brought home a smart new touring car, a purchase he had been threatening to make for a long time, but which I guessed Edith's arrival had hastened.

I shall not soon forget the first time I saw it. Dicky drove it into the yard with a flourish, calling loudly to me. And when I had answered the call he jumped from the seat, chanting the old-time chorus, "Jump on the wagon and we'll take a ride." I felt the muscles of my throat constrict as there came to me the conviction that he had bought the car solely for Edith Fairfax's entertainment, and my reply was carefully cordial, but a distinct refusal.

"It's beautiful," I said, "but I don't feel quite up to a drive this morning."

"Oh, very well, suit yourself!" Dicky's tone was that of a man mortally offended. "How about it, Grace? Eh! mother? Bring the kid."

Mother Graham, from the living room, and Grace Draper from the transformed corncrib studio—which she had slipped into taking care of, and in which she spent most of her time—had come to the front of the house, drawn by Dicky's extravagant shouts. Junior stood between them, dancing at the idea of going in the car, but with both tiny hands pulling insistently at Grace Draper's dress. Oddly enough, he had taken a violent fancy to her upon her first appearance, was continually running to the studio to watch her work and prattle to her, a proceeding which enraged his grandmother. I was not surprised, therefore, when Dicky's mother, with a violent sniff and a look that could have killed, directed toward Grace Draper, said loftily:

"No, thank you, I don't care to drive."

"And I couldn't possibly go," Grace chimed in. "I'm cleaning the studio, and everything will blow to the four winds if I don't get back. Pardon me."

She whisked around the corner, and to my great surprise, Junior, with one doubtful look at his father her the emergency in his work that and the new car, turned his back upon us and toddled after her. Of course, a car was no novelty to him, while rummaging in the studio was. I had added the last straw to Dicky's load of wrath. He wasted no words but I knew that the child's action reminder that he had been there.

I waited, rather tremulously, for Mother Graham's anger to explode. She had been furious when she first learned of Grace Draper's coming back into our lives, and Dicky had left to me the task of explaining to something."

He whirled around the corner, and the car shot out into the road, and a little eddy of dust was the only confronted him, and his absolute need of the girl's services. I had succeeded in convincing her, and to do so justice she was generally courteous, even in the face of Junior's defection. But the episode of the car had been too much for her, and as I was the only one left within sound of her voice I became the scapegoat.

"Well, Margaret!" she said, with crisp cruelty. "With one of your husband's old flames walking off with your child, and another waiting for him to call with that new car, it strikes me you would better come off that high horse of yours and do something."

Feel Weak, Tired, "All Played Out?"

Does the least exertion tire you out? Do you feel "blue" and worried, suffer dragging backache, headaches and dizziness? Too many women blame so-called "female trouble" for this unhappy state instead of weak kidneys, which so often are the cause. You must act quickly to prevent more serious trouble. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands of weak, tired women. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

A Case in Marion

Mrs. M. T. Tuttle, 324 Quarry St., says: "My kidneys were weak and I had a dull backache. When I got up I felt as if I had done a day's work and when I stooped, I became dizzy. My kidneys did not act right so I bought Doan's Kidney Pills at Liggett & Co.'s Drug Store. On using Doan's the backache left and I felt fine."

HAS MADE LIFE WORTH LIVING

This Is What Ohio Woman Says After Health Is Restored By Taking Tanlac.

"Tanlac has been a blessing to me, as it has made life worth living," said Mrs. Irene Grime, of Terrell, Ohio.

"I actually dreaded to go to the table, as I knew no matter how careful I was about what I ate or how little I ate I would suffer at night so much from indigestion I couldn't sleep hardly at all. In the morning I would get up completely worn out. I almost despaired of getting well again, for nothing I tried seemed to reach my case.

"Tanlac did for me what all the other medicines I tried failed to do. Now I am in perfect health. I eat heartily and nothing disagrees with me and at night I sleep as calm and peaceful as a child. My complexion has cleared up and my friends tell me they never saw me look as well as I do now. I feel I owe more to Tanlac than I can ever repay."

Tanlac is sold in Marion by the Dumble Pharmacy.—Adv.

A Gentle Way to End Corns

The Modern Method—Scientific, Easy, Quick and Sure

THE old corn enders were harsh, crude and uncertain. They came into dispute.

Then a world-famed laboratory created a new method, and millions have adopted it.

The new way is Blue-jay—liquid or plaster. One applies it by a touch. The pain stops instantly, and soon the whole corn loosens and comes out.

To pare a corn and keep it sore is folly. Stop it the moment it appears. Remove it in this gentle way.

Watch one corn go when Blue-jay is applied. You will let it deal with all corns after that.

Send to the drug store now.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

DYED HER DRAPERIES AND A FADED SKIRT

"Diamond Dyes" Package tells Women how to Dye any Old Material.

For fifty-one years millions of women have been using "Diamond Dyes" to add years of wear to worn, faded skirts, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, hangings, everything. You too can put new, rich, fadeless colors into your worn garments or draperies even if you have never dyed before. Just buy Diamond Dyes—no other kind—then your material will come out all right, because Diamond Dyes are guaranteed not to streak, spot, fade or run. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods.—Adv.

RURAL SCHOOLS TO OPEN CAGE SEASON ON FRIDAY

Schedule Is Adopted at Athletic Committee Meeting.

Marion county schools will open their basketball season Friday, according to a schedule adopted at a meeting of the athletic committee, Tuesday evening, in the office of W R Heistand, county superintendent of schools

It was explained that the reason for the early season is because of the fact that some of the High schools are small and have no other athletics and also for the reason that some have no floor and the games have to be played out of doors.

Two games will be played by each school on the dates scheduled, one by a boys team and one by a girls' team. Morral and Kirkpatrick each have only one team Morral a boys' team and Kirkpatrick a girls' team and these two schools have been combined on the schedule under the name of Morral. Rules provide that each team must play four of the five games scheduled All of the games are scheduled for Firday, excepting those set for Thursday November 3, on account of the Central Teachers' meeting at Dayton on the following day.

The schedule follows

October 7—Pleasant at Agosta, Prospect at Caledonia, Green Camp at Martel and Morral at Waldo.

October 14—Waldo at Green Camp, Caledonia at LaRue, Agosta at Prospect and Martel at Pleasant

October 21 — Green Camp at Caledonia, Pleasant at LaRue, Agosta at Morral and Prospect at Martel

October 28—Caledonia at Agosta, Morral at Green Camp, LaRue at Pleasant and Martel at Waldo

November 3—Green Camp at LaRue, Caledonia at Morral, Agosta at Martel and Waldo at Prospect.

November 11—LaRue at Morral and Prospect at Pleasant.

November 18—Pleasant at Waldo.
